If all women were only as careful and determined, there would be less grumbling, and Pearline sales would be multiplied.

Probably no woman who uses Pearline would take anything else, knowingly. But since Pearline has become a household word, the ignorant and the careless suffer. The ignorant think that "Pearline" means any washing-powder; the careless fail to notice that they're getting an inferior article, instead of Willions Pearline

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Pancakes Quite Out of the Common-The Cherry Pancake-Lighting That Is Quite Decorative.

Following are recipes for pancakes which will be found somewhat novel: Take 4 tablespoonfuls of flour, 8 eggs, about a pint of milk, lemon juice, castor sugar. Whisk the eggs for 10 minutes in a basin, then add the flour, a little at a time, and a pinch of salt. Whisk well and pour in slowly the milk, beating all the time. Place your frying pan on the side of the stove to get hot, then grease it and pour in a teacupful of the batter, shake the pan to prevent burning and when cooked on one side carefully turn the pancake. They should be a delicate brown on each side. Serve quickly on a very hot dish, with slices of lemon and castor sugar. If liked, they can be rolled instead of turned.

To make Indian pancakes the ingredients required are 1½ cups of milk, 4 eggs, 1½ tablespoonfuls of ground rice, 2 ounces of castor sugar, a couple of pinches of ground ciunamon, some pre served ginger, butter for frying. Put the ground rice in a basin and mix it into a paste with some of the milk, just Heat the rest of the milk to boiling point, then pour it slowly over the rice, adding the cinnamon. Pour it all back into the stewpan and simmer for 5 minutes, stirring all the time. Remove from the stove and allow it to cool. Separate the yolks from the whites of the eggs, whisk the former for 5 minutes and add to the mixture with the castor sugar. Beat the whites to a stiff froth and mix in lightly to the other ingredients. Have the frying pan on the side of the stove quite hot, put in about a des sertspoonful of butter and when melted pour in a small teacupful of the batter. When set and nicely brown, lay on the pancake a tablespoonful of preserved ginger, minced very finely, with a few drops of the sirup, roll up quickly and servo very hot with castor sugar sprinkled on the top. Any other preserved fruit can be used in the place of giuger. Cherry pancakes are made with 3 stale sponge cakes, 3 eggs, 3 ounces of preserved cherries, about a pint of milk, a few drops of essence almonds, easter sugar and butter for frying Crimble up the sponge cakes into a basin and pour over them the milk, which must be boiling; then put it aside to get cool. Separate the whites from the yolks of the eggs and whisk them to a perfectly stiff froth. Beat up the yolks with a few drops of cold milk and add them to the cakes with the cherries finely minced and the almond essence. Lastly, mix in lightly the whites of the eggs. Fry in the usual way in butter, putting in the pan about a teacupful of the batter at a time. Serve, rolled over, on a very hot dish Sprinkle them with castor sugar and a little of the minced cherries.

Orange pancakes can be made in the same way, substituting minced candied orange peel for the cherries and serving them with easter sugar and orange

When the Oven Is Too Hot.

When baking in an oven that is too hot at the top, fill with cold water a dripping pan that is about an inch deep and place it on the top grate of the oven. Should the oven be too hot on the bottom, put a grate under the ar ticle that is to be baked. This precaution, says the Philadelphia Times, will prevent disastrous results.

QUICK TO ANGER.

After All Blykins' Complaint Was an Un-

Mr. Blykins was in the mood to be annoyed by whatever pretext might first assert itself. His wife watched him uneasily as he dropped into his chair in the library and reached for the paper. It was when he perceived through the daily prints the colossal opportunities for criticism of the way in which the affairs of the human race are conducted that he grew most indignant. He reached for a paper and glanced at a headline. With a snort of indignation he arose and threw the paper upon the table, "There it is!" he exclaimed. "The same old story!"

"What's the matter, dear?" came the patient query.

"Matter!" he echoed indignantly as he took the paper again. "Look there and see for yourself what the matter is at that headline, 'Paul Goes to Rome!

"I don't see that it's anything to worry over now. Who's Paul? Tell me that. What has Mr. Paul ever done for this country? But that's the way with every ad ministration. They're always picking out somebody that you never heard of before and giving him one of the most important and biggest salaried places in the whole diplomatic service. Of course I have nothing to say against him per-But why should be be selected when the country is full of men of experience in statecraft and who have in ternational reputations:

HUMOR OF THE HOUR.

In the first number of The Atlantic Monthly, 40 years ago, Ralph Waldo Emerson had a poem called "Brahma," which puzzled both critics and common Some said it was the greatest poem of the century; some said it was nonsense. The first verse ran as follows:

If the red slayer think he slays, Or if the slain think he is slain, They know not well the subtle ways I keep and pass and turn again.

That winter it happened that a relative of the poet Longfellow, living in another state, bought a sleigh, and in a family letter to the cousins in Cambridge there was a wail lest the January thaw which had followed the purchase should keep them from enjoying the gay cutter that season. When the letter was answered, Longfellow contributed this verse, which, it is said, has never been printed before:

ON THE PURCHASE OF A SLEIGH. On THE PURCHASE OF A SLEAK

If the red sleigher think he sleights,
Or if the sleightin think it is sleightin,
They know not well the subtle ways
Of snow, that comes—and goes again. -Buffalo Commercial.

A Narrow Escape. "Yes, that's Scrubbs, the great football player." "How pale he looks." "Yes, he had quite a scare this morn-
